SUMMIT

AGAINST RACISM
& THE FAR RIGHT

This summer saw the biggest far right riots in Britain in decades. We pushed them back through mass mobilisations - but we know the threat continues.

The demonisation of Muslims, migrants and refugees has given confidence to fascists on the streets. In Britain, Farage and Reform UK are using hard racism to drag British politics sharply to the right. Fascist Tommy Robinson is mobilising thousands of his racist supporters onto the streets again. Internationally, fascist and far right parties are riding high in the polls or winning elections. The recent successes of the Freedom Party in Austria and the AfD in Germany are another warning. In the US, the election could see Trump return to the White House.

We can stop the far right. But we need to get organised. That means building a mass movement across Britain - in every town, city, workplace and university campus. Internationally, campaigners need to come together to discuss and debate the way forward and how we continue to resist. Join the summit and be part of the anti-racist and anti-fascist fightback.

Themes include

- Farage to Trump: How do we stop the growth of the far right
- Opposing Islamophobia
- Stop the scapegoating: refugees welcome
- Two-tier? The reality of racist policing
- Here to stay, here to fight: Asian fightback in Britain
- Cable Street to today: a history of anti-fasism
- Power in our unions: the role of the organised working class
- Antisemitism and the new far right
